Women in Plumbing

A note by IPSC Vice Chairman, Mr. Vinay Gupta

Nirmala Nishad

Tools & Tiaras, Pink Lady Plumbing, Pink Plumbing, and Stop-cocks Women Plumbers are organizations that have got special recognition in World. Not because they are giants but because these plumbing products and servicing firms are owned by women; Judaline Cassidy from the US, Claire King from the UK &

Hattie Hasan from the UK respectively. All these three ladies have been in the business for many years now and they've shown the globe that plumbing can be taken up as a profession by women as well. The change has not limited itself to the boundaries of the West but has reached India as well where women are taking up conventionally male-dominated professions such as Plumbing. >> Continued on Page 6

Hunt begins to find #IndiaKeSkillStar

IPSC has received 2228 applications in the Plumbing & Heating category which is almost the four times of what we received during IndiaSkills 2018 cycle. This massive rise in the number of received applications points to the continuous advocacy efforts of IPSC in the skilling ecosystem. The last two years have witnessed capacity building & skill enhancement of the beneficiaries. IPSC has not only upskilled the plumbing community of India but also made sure that the skills of trained beneficiaries are utilized in the best possible manner and get its due credit. This very objective of IPSC has led us to motivate our beneficiaries to participate in skill competitions like IndiaSkills which will give skilled workforce a chance to represent the country at the moter of IndiaSkills, has been appreciable. NSDC has motivated all the SSCs to encourage beneficiaries to come up and participate in skill competitions. More than a lac registrations till now is a live proof of all the hard work carried out by NSDC.

It is also to be noted that the winners of IndiaSkills 2020 will get an opportunity to represent the Nation at the WorldSkills global level.

The support from National Skills Development Corporation (NSDC), the organizer and process. My income did increase after the certification and now on the behalf of the same certification, I am being able to run my own business as well", described Siva to our team.

As part of Ashirvad's placement program in collaboration with Sobha Developers, Siva was employed immediately after his certification. This 3-month job came as a morale booster for Siva and he was now ready to go ahead with his own business. "Siva Engineering & Plumbing Works" is the banner under which Siva is now running his business which not only includes Plumbing work but Rain Water Harvesting work as well. What is more fascinating is that the 24-year-old boy is currently giving employment to two other plumbers in his shop. After all the expenses he is currently saving about Rs.25000/- per month. Siva continues to visit Ashirvad Plumbing School to share his learnings with other aspiring plumbers who draw inspiration from him.

#Skill2Transform: Siva Siddhu

24-year-old plumber from Attibele village of Bangalore took these quotes religiously and what is in front of us today is truly inspirational.

Plumbing was never a career option for Siva, at least not till his graduation. And it was just in months when he realized that Plumbing could be a good career option. Siva completed his Bachelor's in Commerce in 2017 and started working as an HR Assistant. After four months of struggle and unwanted pressure, it was pretty much clear to Siva that this HR thing is not going to last for him. "I was done with that job and left that", says Siva. In a family where both parents had to depend on agriculture to earn the bread and butter for the family, Siva could not have afforded to be unemployed. As a result, Siva had to find a job immediately. In the event of finding a new job, he ended up having a job in L&T as a piping supervisor at a very low salary of Rs. 10000/- per month. This was Siva's first step in the plumbing industry. Plumbing was now not an alienated work for Siva. During his employment in L&T, he developed an interest in plumbing and wanted to learn more.

Walking on the streets of his village, Siva one day noticed Ashirvad Plumbing School (APS). With a willingness to know more about the school, he entered the same and came to know about the Plumbing Training and Certification program of the Indian Plumbing Skills Council. APS was now a new goal for Siva. After an informal discussion with his brother, Siva decided to get himself enrolled in the Training and in February 2019, he was successfully certified by Indian Plumbing Skills Council.

"Ashirvad Plumbing School provided me with good accommodation and the response from them was very warm. I can't thank them much for whatever they've done for me.", said Siva when contacted by our team. "IPSC came into my life like a new chapter with a lot of suc-

Women in Plumbing

Indian Plumbing Skills Council has been continuously making efforts to break the stereotypes of only men being in trades like plumbing. IPSC's MoU with Roca's CSR wing We Are Water Foundation is a live evidence of the same which aims to train & certify 700 women in plumbing. During a Skill India Exhibition organized in Kanpur in 2016 where the Hon'ble Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi Ji was himself present, a female plumber, trained by IPSC, showcased plumbing skills at the event which was appreciated by Hon'ble PM as well. Plumbing was one of the twelve skills shortlisted out of 40 skills for the event. In association with its Training Partners. IPSC has been preparing female plumbers. This financial year has marked a figure of 300 women plumbers being trained and certified by IPSC and the organization aims to get into four figures before the end of this financial year.

Lauren Phillips at WorldSkills'19

Nirmala Nishad, a 33-year-old woman from Chattisgarh came to headlines when NSDC featured her in its success story section. Nirmala belongs from an OBC and economically weaker background. She was in search of work when she was contacted by one of our training partners. On learning about the different skill training and job roles offered by them, Nirmala decided to take up Plumbing. After taking two months of training in the plumbing trade she's now earning for her family and helping the only earning member of her family, her husband. Najreen from Banaras is also an inspiration for all the women who want to fly high. After completing her 12th, Najreen came to know about Indian Plumbing Skills Council and after going through all the information available on the SSC's website, she confronted her father with a wish to pursue her career in Plumbing. Unlike any orthodox parent, her father allowed her to chase her wish. After acquiring a three-month training from the Institute of Engineering and Technical Education Varanasi, Najreen then started working in a three-star hotel in Varanasi. The girl from Varanasi is herself an example of how stereotypes can be challenged and broken in society. It was Najreen that featured Plumbing Skills in presence of the Hon'ble PM in December 2016 at Kanpur. The global plumbing community must recognize the fact that out of 40 Plumbing & Heating category competitors only one was a female, Lauren Phillips from New Zealand. This is one figure we must focus on and increase the same. IPSC envisages giving basic repair and maintenance training to women, with housewives as the primary target for this job role. The basic idea behind this is to prepare women who can perform certain basic Plumbing repairs as and when needed in their surrounding areas/residences. This would not only ease out the comfort level of females who are reluctant to have male plumbers entering their bathrooms or bedrooms but would also create new employment opportunities for females in a male-dominated profession like Plumbing. This is just the tip of the iceberg. We aim to achieve our goal of including more women in the plumbing profession as soon as possible by organizing dedicated batches for women. The world and society must know that a skilled man can only uplift a family, but a skilled woman can uplift a complete generation.
